

AGNIESZKA STANIMIR
Wroclaw University of Economics, Poland

PERCEPTION OF WORK CONDITIONS AND QUALITY - GENERATION Y POINT OF VIEW

Abstract:

The aim of the study is to examine the work conditions and quality of work assessed by people from generation Y. There will be also presented comparisons of points of view of Generation Y and to other age groups. The analysis is important because people in this age group are guided by other values in lifestyle than older people. The objective of the Europe 2020 strategy is to achieve the employment rate in 2020 on level of 75% for the European Union. Strategic objectives for the Member States are different. In Poland in 2020, the employment rate should reach 71%. These goals may be achieved only if citizens want to work, and their work meets their expectations. To achieve the objectives of the study were used statistical analysis methods adequate to the scale of measurement of factors observed on the labour market.

Keywords:

Generation Y, conditions of work, work quality, labour market, multidimensional analysis

JEL Classification: J00, C19